Is There a Book in You? Publish it!

Publishing technology and the industry has changed dramatically in recent years. It's no longer impossible or expensive for new authors to get published thanks to "Indie Publishing" and POD (print on demand) technology. Join local author "Mr. Boomsma" to learn how he published and distributes his recent book "Small People — Big Brains" using readily available resources.

Nokomis Regional High School, Newport—6:30 p.m. Course sponsor is RSU 19.

Solopreneuring—Got What it Takes?

Nearly everyone at some time enjoys the idea of "being their own boss." But, believe it or not, being your own boss can be a pain. The rewards may be great but so are the risks and requirements. This fast-paced workshop will challenge you to be honest with yourself and discover what sort of person you will be to work for.

Nokomis Regional High School, Newport—6:30 p.m. Course sponsor is RSU 19.

Additional CE Courses are offered by AGSRE, these are just the ones I am personally teaching.

The instructor instilled a level of confidence in his teaching due to experience with the subject matter. I felt extremely comfortable asking questions in relation to the material presented. I have experience teaching/instructing and receiving such in six years of college. I have no issue stating that this instructor is among the top three I have had.

About Walter Boomsma

Prior to obtaining his real estate license Walter owned and operated a human resource consulting business working with organizations nationwide to implement systems and practices designed to support learning and encourage excellence. For over twenty years he developed and delivered training programs and was a featured keynote speaker for numerous companies, associations, civic and educational groups. He also teaches for several adult education districts and is a "battle tested" substitute school teacher at Piscataquis Community Elementary School-- Kindergarten through Sixth Grade. An active community volunteer, Walter is a volunteer "bookworm" with second and third graders and says he "learns a lot" from the stories they read to him and the conversations they have. His book, "Small People — Big Brains" details some of his experiences and lessons the kids have taught him.
